MANILA, June 14, (AP): Police descended on a rural village and arrested two people in the killing of two officers but ended up in custody themselves after government troops blocked their depar-ture, officials said today.

A police spokesman meanwhile, said three people were killed in artillery exchanges between Syrian and Christian forces in and around Beirut despite Arab League efforts to halt the 13-week confrontation.

That raised the overall toll to 370 people people killed and 1,441 wounded since fighting erupted March 8 between Christian Army commander Gen. Michel Aoun's unit and Syrian and allied forces.

The police spokesman said six warplanes launched 10 rockets in two separate runs against the hideout, just outside this hilltop village, eight miles (13 kilometres) southeast of Beirut.

Non-residents in a quandary

Visas refused

By Fathima Ahmed Arab Times staff

HUNDREDS of people from the Indian sub-continent, who hoped to perform the haj, may not be able to fulfil their wish due to the new haj rules implemented by Saudi Arabia.

The Saudi embassy's haj visa section is not issuing visas to nonoing via Kuwait. This was confirmed by a Saud diplomat. He said: "We issue haj visas only to the residents of Kuwait; non-residents will not get visas."

This is the first year that non-residents have been refused visas; previously such visas were granted by the Saudis. Last year, nonresident applicants were granted a visa at the last moment.

"There was a delay but people were given visas," a source said. In previous years, large number of expatriate residents accompanied their ageing parents. Ususally, parents and wives were called on a visit visa to Kuwait and went from here on haj. Similarly, hundreds of people, mainly from the sub-continent, had arrived in Kuwait this year to avail such an opportunity. "I may not be able to take my mother to perform the haj."

Saudia and Kuwait Airways, who are now accepting reservations, have been deluged by non-resident bookings.
"There are over a hundred such people who approached our airline," said a source from one of the airlines.

Bookings are made on completion of all formalities, including obtaining a visa. Vaccination against meningitis is a must for intending pilgrims, who must also be booked with a caravan. Last year, more than 17,000 pilgrims went for haj from

ABU DHABI, June 14, (AP): Two Irishmen arrested after kidnapping a child they sought to smuggle to her mother have been freed after serving only nine months of their two-year prison terms, police sources said today.

Gerard Flynn, 26, and Dennis Dennehy, 28, were pardoned by a decree issued by the ruler of Sharjah, Sheikh Sultan Bin Mohammed Al Qassimi, at the request of the Irish Ambassador D. Connolly, the sources said. The two men were turned

They had been held at Sharjah's port of Khor Fakkan. Sharjah is in one of the seven emirates federated in the UAE. Flynn and Dennehy were convicted in March and sentenced to two years each for kidnapping five-year-old Nadine Naseer from the house of her Jordanian father, Dr Samir Naseer, in Khor Fakkan in September. The pain won't go away

Uno refuses to quit over geisha row

ESCONDIDO, California, June 14, (Reuter): Le Ly Hayslip was tortured, raped and sentenced to death as a peasant girl during the Vietnam war but recalling her own experiences does not bother her.

"It's painful when I talk about what happened to my brother, my father, my sister and my people." the author of a newly published memoir of the war said in

"How much my mother and my father suffered, how the villagers stand there and bury the people. again I cry. All my playmates in the grave — all that hurts me," she added, her eyes filling with tears.

"They cannot release their pain. They have no way to let go. Who will listen to them? Who can they talk to? How can Americans understand how they feel?" Hayslip, 39, tries to speak for them in "When Heaven and Earth Changed Places: A Vietnamese Woman's Journey from War to Peace," published this month by Doubleday.

The author's journey has taken her to a part of the world far removed from the devastation and poverty of the Vietnam she fled in 1970. She and her three children live in an idyllic, setting overlooking a vineyard-speckled valley in Escondido, about 30 miles (50 km) outside San Diego.

But the memories remain vivid, the emotional ties are still close — she left most of her family behind in Vietnam — and what she calls the "mission of my

of those people."

Haysip was born Phung Thi Le Ly in a small village near Da Nang in cental Vietnam, the youngest of six children. As a teenager she collaborated with the Viet Cong and was tortured and beaten by the south Vietnamese Army.

After she was released from one notorious Army prison, the Viet Cong sentenced her to death as a traitor and two guerrillas raped her.

Le Ly escaped with ther mother to Da Nang, where she hawked black market goods to American soldiers and even sold herself to one as a prostitute for $400.

"I was not alone. A lot of people were in this situation. You go with the wind. I don't care about the south Vietnamese government, I don't care about the Viet Cong any more. ... I only wanted to survive, do the best that I could."

Le Ly survived and married the American civilian who helped her flee Vietnam. But she did not start writing the book until her second husband, also an American, died in 1982.

"I was just a housewife and mother and every time that I would bring up writing a book about Vietnam and my life story, people made fun of me, especially my husbands," she recalled. "I wasn't a colonel or a five-star general so what did I know about the war?"

Hayslip runs a charity called East meets West, dedicated to such goals as building clinics in Vietnam and reuniting families separated by the war. Her living room overflows with bags of medical supplies destined for Vietnamese orphans.

"The role I see myself in is just to plant a seed," she said. "The harvest would be love, compassion, for-giveness — bringing joy to others, not suffering."

Soviet Union joined the United States and Vietnam today in opposing calls for forcible repatriation of boat people to help Hong Kong and other Southeast Asian coastal states cope with a dramatic increase in Soviet Chief Delegate Genrikh V. Kireev also told a UN conference that raising living stan-dards in the countries of Indo-China by international economic assistance would promote "a radical solution" to the problem.

The conference ending today is expected to formally endorse a set of measures designed to deter the mounting number of Viet-namese fleeing for reasons other than political persecution.

The plan will introduce screening procedures in the countries of first refuge to determine whether new arrivals can claim political asylum and refugee status and thus are eligible for resettlement. It calls for the return of all "nonrefugees" to their homeland.

On the opening day of the conference, attended by 60 countries, Hong Kong Governor Sir David Wilson, backed by Britain, had urged quick man-datory repatriation of all boat people denied refugee status as a "humane course" to deal with

With 43,000 boat people, Hong Kong has by far the largest number of Vietnamese in any territory in the region.

The welcome once given to them has faded, Wilson said, noting that only one out of every six Vietnamese arriving in Hong Kong last year has found a new home elsewhere.

"The consequences for Hong Kong are appalling," he said. "Our resources have been over-

The outflow of boat people "must be stopped or drastically reduced," Wilson said.

Meanwhile about 300 refugees from southern Vietnam demanded today to be transferred to another camp, complaining of threats and attacks by countrymen from the Communist heartland of northern Vietnam.

Kim Young-Sam in secret talks with N. Korean official

SEOUL, June 14, (AP): South Korean opposition leader Kim Young-Sam said in Washington today, he met a senior North Korean official in Moscow last week and discussed various issues between the rival Korean states, news reports said.

In dispatches from Washington, local newspapers said Kim met with Ho Dam, a former North Korean deputy premier and foreign minister, in Moscow for two hours on June 6 but no agreements were reached.

The secret meeting, the first of its kind, was not disclosed until today, when Kim arrived in the United States after a one-week visit to the Soviet Union. Kim said the meeting was arranged by the Soviet Union's Institute of World Economy and International Relations, which invited him to Moscow. The institute is known as a think-tank for the Kremlin.

"Before departure from Seoul, I thought that North Korean officials would make an approach to me in Moscow, but I did not know it would be Ho Dam until one day before," he told South Korean reporters who accompanied him on the trip.

Ho, 61, who married a niece of North Korean leader Kim II Sung, is one of Pyongyang's top strategists on South Korea. He is ranked 11th in the leadership of North Korea's ruling Workers Party and currently serves as chairman of the committee for the peaceful unification of the fatherland.

Bracelet could be link to the past for some Detective finds way to help lost people

LOS ANGELES, June 14, (UPI): Detective Doug Haskin has spent the better part of the decade finding missing persons and returning people whose memories are impaired to those who care for them.

Sitting behind his desk in the Missing Persons Unit at the Los Angeles Police Department headquarters, the burly veteran investigator described a scenario he confronts daily.

"It begins like this," he said, leaning forward and taking a long drag on a cigarette. "An individual who can't even remember his name walks away from a room-and-board facility. He's wandering around the streets citizens take him in.

They call the police. Officers get there, but he can't remem ber who he is or where he lives. The officers notify us and then take him to the station. They'll wait there while we try to link him to a report of a missing person. The officers wait, but they have to get back on the streets. If we can't help, they only have one alternative — take him to a county hosp-

The memory-impaired person may remain at the hospital for days, weeks or even months as social workers and detectives try to determine who he is and where he lives. Haskins said one man spent nearly four months in a hospital before he was returned to his home, just a few blocks from where police picked him up.

For each day that otherwise healthy person occupies a county hospital bed, taxpayers shell out a minimum of $1,000, including the costs of social workers and detectives.

Last year, Haskin and other detectives wrote up 3,170 missing persons reports. Of those, 1,827 - or 58 per cent - were for people described as being in poor mental

"The 58 per cent we wrote reports on and that doesn't include the hundreds of others who were lost and returned before we had a chance to write a report - were schizos, (those with) Alzheimer's disease. coke heads, retarded, people in and out of mental hospitals ... people with poor memories," Haskin said.

Haskin's office walls are covered with photos of John Does and Jane Does, police jargon for unidentified men and woman. Some of the Does are dead, their photos taken in a morgue.

He envisions a scenario that could make his life, and those of others in similar jobs nationwide a lot simpler

"Picture this," he said. "A person walks away. A citizen takes him in and call us. He's wearing a medic alert bracelet. We ask for the personal identification number on the bracelet and send a (police) unit out. As the officers are en route, we call medic alert and give them the ID number. They put the number into a database and come up with the person's name, what medications he's on, where he lives, information on who to call in case of emergency everything we want to know about this

"By the time of ricers arrive and pick him up, we can tell them who they got and where he lives. Within minutes he's home and the unit is free to return to the street." Giving memory-impaired people bracelets that can help authorities quickly identify them is an idea whose time has come, Haskin said. Such a programme for Alzheimer's patients has been in operation in San Diego county for a year.

We're very pleased with it," said Judy Neubauer, director of operations for Alzheimer's Family Centre. "It's very good

Proposal for sailing trip runs aground

STOCKHOLM, June 14, (Reuter): Sweden has long been known for its gentle methods in dealing with criminals. But a recent plan to send juvenile delinquents on a Caribbean sailing trip was too much for many citizens to swallow.

The decision to send six youth offenders on a six-month sailing trip to the West Indies prompted a wave of protests, forcing the authorities to cancel the voyage.

Now, social workers are worried there could be a backlash aimed at the entire rehabilitation system. "Swedish law says we should rehabilitate juveniles, not punish them," said Bo Svensson, head of the Youth Defender Placement Unit at Stockholm's Social Dis-

He said the trip would have given the youngsters, convicted of robbery, assault and theft, the chance to learn sailing and maritime discipline from social workers and seamen in a tightly

"I supported the trip. Now it is questionable whether the sailing idea will be developed further,"

The protests grew stronger as one of the delinquents who was due to go on the cruise was arrested on suspicion of raping a 14year-old girl twice in one week. "If anybody should go on a cruise to the West Indies it's the victims of these criminals," said one newspaper editorial. 'How is this going to end? If the man suspected of killing (Prime Minister) Olof Palme is convicted — will he get a trip around the world?" another Stockholm social worker Svante Wallin said the sailing plan, which stemmed from a Danish initiative, could have served as a good emergency alternative for difficult juveniles. "A boat is a prototype of a mini-society. It's not a bad idea. But it's not revolutionary either.

Our 'activity of daily life training' could work just as well in the mountains for example," he said. "I can understand these feelings. If my daughter were raped and I read in the newspapers that the rapist and his friends were going off to the Caribbean I would be furious," said Wallin. But be and other social workers all felt the country's decadeslong regime of progressive correctional care needed to be preserved and updated.

We are talking about the very worst of youth offenders. Experience has shown that open care is better than locking them up. We do need alternative methods and progressive thinking,"

"Some of the boys we are talking about are in such had shape that they will end up in prison as soon as they turn 18 unless something is done to help them," Wallin said.

Convicted criminals under 18 years of age in Sweden are normally not sentenced to prison, although they can legally be locked up at 15.

New ideas in the works include a sailing trip on a Swedish cargo ship for three months and a camping trip to Poland.

Noriega refuses talks with foes

(Agencies): A negotiated solution to Panama's political crisis appeared less likely yesterday with a former presidential candidate's report that Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega refused direct dialogue with the opposition.

Negotiators from the Organisation of American States met for an hour with Noriega, Panama's de facto ruler and military strongman, yesterday at the Panama Defence Force central barracks in the capital.

A member of the OAS delegation refused to comment on the outcome of their talks with Noriega, who the United States has been trying to oust for more than a year.

The OAS negotiating team, hoping to solve Panama's political crisis following voided – some say fraud-tainted – presidential elections, also met yesterday with Panamanian lawmakers.

But even before Endara's statement, diplomatic sources said the negotiations appeared stalled.

Drugs keep coming to US

Efforts to stop fail

WASHINGTON, June 14, (AP): Interdiction efforts aren't keeping drugs out of the United States. Federal agencies say they will, someday. But officials say that even if the borders were sealed, people in the US still would face a drug plague.

What's a government to do?
William Bennett, director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy, says the United States must keep up the interdiction pressure on all fronts — air, land and sea.

But as Bennett works on a national strategy for combating drug abuse and the violence spawned by drug trafficking, he also is accepting that much more must be done on prevention, education and treatment.

"You don't abandon interdiction just because drugs are somehow getting through," said Bennett spokesman Don Hamilton. "You have to do what you can to make the lives of traffickers more difficult ...

"The whole strategy consists of doing everything doing everything smarter and everything better," Hamilton said.

A report by the General Accounting Office, the research branch of Congress, says drugs were found on only 10 per cent of the planes targeted for inspection through aerial interdiction, and that half of those were "con-trolled" deliveries in which intelligence agents knew in advance that the planes were bringing in drugs. Arnold Jones of the GAO stressed during testimony last week before the Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations that, despite all interdiction efforts, the drug supply in the US is increasing, illustrated by an increase in purity of drugs sold on the street, a decrease in price, and a hike in drug-related emergency room treatments. Enforcement officials acknowledge that huge amounts of drugs are still getting through, but say the interdiction efforts have other benefits.

Coast Guard Lt Cmdr James Simpson says that even if aerial interdiction's success rate were just one out of 20 planes, "that's a great record." For years, Simpson said, the Coast Guard "(moved) around the Caribbean with two or three ships, and we came up with huge seizures of marijuana. Eventually we put a lot of equipment down there and seizures drop-

Treasury Department. Simpson said he views decreased seizures not as a failure but as success, indicating that the drug traffickers have had to use other routes that possibly cost more and pose more problems, such as using individual overland couriers or hiding the drugs in cargo containers.

Dick Weart of the US Customs Service said a system of radar balloons along the southern border is only partially completed, but already "land-border crossing seizures are up 500 to 600 per cent. More and more, we're getting containers with 5,000, 6,000, and 7,000 pound (2,268, 2,721, and 3,175 kilogram) loads.

"This indicates to me that they're moving toward less desirable means of transporting their product," Weart said, explaining that such modes are less desirable "because they can't control it from beginning to end like they can on a small plane." But some say interdiction, no matter how dramatic some seizures may seem, ultimately won't work, not only because foreign drug traffickers will continue to get around barriers but because domestic producers will fill any otherwise unmet demand. The head of the Senate investigations subcommittee, Sen. Sam

Nunn, a Georgia Democrat, and other panel members are frustrated by a lack of information and direction on the issue, said a source on the subcommittee staff.

"If we keep forcing them elsewhere, where does it end? Where will they go next? Are you willing to seal off all the borders of the United States?" said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

"Even if you manage to seal a complete border around the United States, what will that accomplish? ... We've had people tell us that if the borders were sealed, within three days domestic labs will be producing Labour has turned the election into a referendum on the Thatcher decade — with special emphasis on the charge that she is a reluctant European, fighting each step toward a Europe that conforms in everything from a single currency to the size of health warnings on cigarette packs.

Labour is also favoured in by-elections tomorrow to fill two vacant parliamentary seats in Glasgow and London. The European elections come as Thatcher is taking on the commun-

Don't embarrass Cristiani: Quayle

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, June 14, (AP): US Vice-President Dan Quayle is warning El Salvador's extreme conservatives against tarnishing the democratically elected government of President Alfredo Cristiani with human rights abuses.

"Don't embarrass Cristiani," Quayle's press secretary quoted the vice-president as telling Roberto D'Aubuisson, the alleged death squad kingpin and founder of the Republican Nationalist Alliance, or Arena, Cristiani's party.

The press secretary, David Beckwith, said D'Aubuisson nodded when Quayle pulled him aside and made the request. The four other Arena politicians present said Christiani "would be vigilant" and punish anyone who committed violations, Beckwith said.

crime rate is

MOSCOW, June 14, (AP); Soviet crime is up by 32 per cent so far this year and thousands of criminal gangs are flourishing under loosened controls and worsening consumer shortages, top police officials said yester-

This year's crime wave stems largely from the "relaxing of discipline" and empty store shelves created by current reforms, Maj. Gen. Anatoly Smirnov of the Interior Ministry's information

Smirnov told a Moscow news briefing 884,967 crimes were reported in the first five months of 1989, an increase of 31.9 per cent over the same period last Official figures also show street crime rising by 83 per cent, property crimes by 53 per cent and murder by 26.5 per cent, Smirnov said.

Increasing drunkenness as President Mikhail Gorbachev's anti-alcohol campaign cases up and "the relaxation of discipline among a certain part of the population" have fuelled the increase in murder and other serious crimes, Smirnov said: And the shortages that have worsened steadily under economic experiments begun in recent years have created a demand for stolen goods that spurs robbers on, he said. The country's rail, air and river transport is becoming increasingly crime-ridden, with robbery and mugging growing five times faster there than among the general population, Smirnov-added. 70 -------The ministry also noticed a "rise in the aggressiveness of cer-tain citizens," he said, with nine Soviet policemen being killed its clashes with criminals in May alone.

One crime-fighting experiment has shown good results, however, he said. In the Russian city of Gorky,-where two policemen were murdered this sware straid to leave their homes at night, the creation of workers' militias to back up police has cut the crime rate's growth by 38 per cent.

Gorbachev himself has admitted that his reforms led to an increase in crime in the Soviet Union. In a speech to Communist Party leaders this spring, he said they should have kept in mind that "any extension of democracy and humanisation of life should go parallel with an uncompromising struggle against criminal elements."

Organised crime got its start in the large "shadow economy" of theft, embezzlement and unofficial wheeling-and-dealing that has thrived since the 1970s, said police Col. Gennady Chebotarev.

More than 1,000 organised crimes are uncovered every year, often groups of more than 100 people — frequently former athletes — who stake out territory and demand protection money, Chebotarev said. Another police Colonel, Alexander Gurov, estimated there were more than a dozen major crime networks in the Soviet Union, but said there could not be an organisation on the scale of the Cosa Nostra, a reference to Italian-American organised crime.

"The Cosa Nostra would ga broke within a week here," said. "The bureaucracy would smother it" because the bribes it would have to pay to get offices and basic supplies would prove prohibitive.

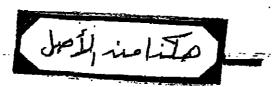

Smaller groups, however, can end up even more dangerous than major networks because they are more mobile and flexible, Gurov said.

"We're talking about thousands of dangerous groups," he said.
Organised groups of criminals also have started to foster ties with international crime, particularly in connection with computer imports, antiques, gold and jewels. Chebotarev said, Computers are in heavy demand? in the Soviet Union, and speculators can make huge profits by buying and selling even relatively cheap personal computers. Racketeering is also an old trade in the Soviet Union, Chebotarev said, but is has found tempting new targets in the profitable private co-operatives that have begun to spring up under Gorbachev's reforms.

The Interior Ministry is creating special units to fight organised crime, but also neest tougher laws to be able to use video cameras and eavesdropping devices to help catch crime cingpins, Gurov said.

US nuclear forces 'credible deterrent'

American capabilities cause for concern

WASHINGTON, June 14, (UPI): US nuclear forces are a "credible deterrent" to a Soviet strike, but America's conventional forces are capable of protecting only the United States and its interests outside central Europe, the government said yesterday.

"In a global conventional war, US forces are capable of protecting the US homeland and its interests except in central Europe, where our capabilities may be cause for concern," said the 1989 joint military net assessment study, produced jointly by the Defence Department and the CIA.

The classified military assessment, a study that is produced every two years, was presented yesterday to the House intelligence committee. An unclassified version of the study was released to the press. "In central Europe, the assessments indicate that US and allied ground, air and naval forces should be

'Negotiate cuts'

MOSCOW, June 14, (AP): Despite its unilateral cuts, the Soviet military's "overwhelming numbers" still make it the world's biggest war machine and don't back up Kremlin claims about a switch to defensive strategy, the chairman of the US joint chiefs of staffs said yesterday.

Speaking candidly, it is rather difficult for Americans — and those in many other countries — to see how such a massive array of power is mandated by the legitimate needs of defence," Adm. William Crowe Jr told students and instructors at the Voroshilov General Staff Military Academy in Moscow.

Crowe, on an 11-day official visit to the Soviet Union, also suggested that instead of announcing more unilateral reductions, the Kremlin join the United States in negotiating mutual cuts, even of modest scale — a step he said would best promote progress in arms control.

You'd be surprised at the effect it would have, and pave the way for more dramatic steps in the future," Crowe told his Soviet audience. . . ^

The 64-year-old admiral, accompanied by an entourge of top US brass and Gen. Mikhail Moiseyev — his official host and head of the Soviet General staff - also visited once secret military installations outside Moscow to examine weaponry.

It was the latest in a series of high-level military visits began in July with one to the United States by Marshal Sergei Akhromeyev, then Soviet chief of staff. In August, then-defence secretary Frank Carlucci visited the Soviet Union.

In a heavy rain, Crowe and top US military officers who accompanied him were shown a training version of a snub-nosed

He added that the specific role of the British Council in Kuwait was carefully considered to take cognisance of the changing requirements of the country and to tailor the services offered by the council accordingly. The council extended co-operative arrangements for facilitating teachers to obtain scholarships and provided educational advice and developed other services in the field of education and culture.

CANADIAN Immigration Counsellor in Kuwait W.R. Bowden has said that his country's visas are not for sale. He also said that "selection for a job" is only one element in the process of migrating to Canada, advising prospective migrants to "seek free advice" at the Canadian Embassy in Kuwait.

Bowden said "getting a job" is only one step in the process of obtaining migration and does not mean that that person who has found a job has also "got a visa".

Bowden's comments came in response to an Arab Times query about his country's immigration policy

CANADA wants settlers, not people who want a Canadian passport, Due to shortage of staff, he said John A. Garufi, a leading Canadian immigration consultant.

Garufi said it has become "fashionable" for people to apply for said, the immigration office is unable to "give as fast a service as Canadian passports. "Its trendy to become a Canadian; but we want people would wish" and admit-ted that "there is a considerable people who'll contribute to society in the next 20 years and longer," he

In turn, they get a new home, he added.

To get a Canadian passport, a person has to live in that country for at least three years; and if you don't live in the country for 182 days you lose your immigration," said Garufi.

"If you live in Canada, you'll have the right to citizenship," he said.

"A lot of people are missled by consultants who say they can get you a live in the light to citizenship." asserted Garufi. job and immigration; they can't get you immigration," asserted Garufi, president of the International Entrepreneurs I.E.C. Ltd., a Montrealbased firm dealing with business migrants. He was recently in Kuwait. In an interview with the Arab Times, he criticised some recruiters for exploiting "ordinary people" by charging exorbitant fees.

A recruiting agency can recruit as many people as they want, but the decision of granting a visa is not in their hands; it rests with the Canadian Immigration Authority," he asserted.

"There is no system like wasta (influence) and 'I know the Canadian officer and I can get you the visa to Canada'," said John Garufi.

You can't work in Canada unless you have immigration," he added. "You only need to fill in an application form (with personal details) to apply for migration. No consultant in the world can help you with

He advised people to look into the background of a consultant. They must ask such questions as, Who are you in Canada? Who are your bankers? How long you've been in business? etc. etc. And if a consultant charges just to see him, you shouldn't go to him," he said.

"Would you pay for a pair of shoes without buying them?" he asks.

Asked to comment on consultants who charge a fee of Canadian $200 or more from such workers as nurses and maids, with a promise of a job and migration to Canada, Garufi said "I personally don't agree with (such a practice); that's when the Canadian government gets really upset. Someone is exploiting an ordinary worker, I find it hard to encourage," he said.

If an applicant goes through agencies, immigration officers are a lot tougher than they would be if it were an individual applicant. They want to discourage the trend; they don't want a third person getting

A consultant has no special privileges; applicants do not get special treatment, and an officer will not speed up work (because of a lawyer or a consultant), Garufi said.

"But he (immigration officer) knows the difference between good and bad consultants," he added.

Garufi advised people to be wary of recruiters who take advantage of the situation. Canadian consultants believe that the Gulf area is one of the most fertile to lure prospective migrants, particularly because the economic boom has ended and expatriates are no longer welcome. The Gulf has had its boom now they don't need the expats; Canada rants them," explained Garufi.

Firms, like Garufi's specialise in "offering expert guidance on feasibility studies to set up a business" to prospective business

"We are different. We can help prepare a feasibility study; that's where we can help," he said. Business category applicants must have a minimum of three years perience and submit a feasibility study of the proposed project "A consultant can help you do a market study, as knows what the government is looking for and he knows the market," Garufi said.

"A businessman must be serious. This is not measurable in tangibles but the fact that a person visits Canada and does a market study is an indication he is serious," he explained. The worst thing an immigrant can do is to change country and change experience as well, Garufi warned, Garufi warned, stressing that it is not easy for a person to make a new home in a new country. Many consultants sell a list of skills to prospective applicants but lists are useless for the common people. But the time an application is reviewed, those categories have already been filled up, he said Garufi has been dealing with business migration in the Gulf for the last seven years.

As a business consultant, Garufi said he handles about 700 cases per year from all over the world. Of these 40 per cent are from the Gulf, 40 per cent from South-East Asia, and the rest from other parts of the world. "There is a bottleneck for immigration from the Gulf," he said.

Applications for family class visas are given priority treatment. Refugee status applications, seeking migration on the basis of persecution for reasons of race, religion or membership

The director of the prevention

division at the department Salem Al Sager has said that as much as 60 to 80 per cent of residential accommodations were under lease as storage facilities for highly inflammable material

He said a recent survey of the five governorates indicated that a considerable number of storage spaces existed in residential areas and that consequently a series of meetings were held with the relevant personnel at Kuwait Municipality. The outcome was the formation of an ad-hoc committee with members from both sides who would carry out a field survey aimed at recommending practical solutions to this phenomenon.

He appealed to all those who used basements, whether leasers or proprietors to contact the department and provide a statement of the material stored. He pointed out that the storing practice was illegal, due to the lack of true knowledge of the nature of stored material, and that a good number of stores in the industrial areas were unauthorised.

He highlighted the official storing standards as including the availability of fire hydrants. fire extinguishers, sound assortment of stored material, avoiding roof-high storing techniques, provision of protection shields around electrical lighting equipment to avoid hazardous contact with stored material, and distribution of stored material based on the nature, type and specifications.

He also insisted on providing regular maintenance for all fire fighting equipment and systems in all buildings which would prove highly essential during emergencies

Meanwhile the Municipal Affairs Committee has rejected a demand from the Public Utilities Management Company to transfer free car parks at the Water Front into paid parking zones. The committee held a meeting attended by the minister of state for municipal affairs which referred a proposal to assume charges against draining sewage water from farms to a legal and financial committee. The proposal was submitted by the assistant director of municipality for health affairs.

THE Civil Service Commission is studying the feasibility of providing the postal department with 50 non-Kuwaiti postmen who will work in the new post offices that will be opened during this year, an official

These non-Kuwaiti postmen should have a secondary school certificate, the Assistant Undersecretary at the Ministry of Communications for Postal Affairs Naser Al Jirawi said.

He added that the department suffers from a shortage of postmen because Kuwaiti youths do not like to work at this job for many reasons and also because the Civil Service Coucil prevents the appointment of non-Kuwaitis in public jobs.

Jirawi pointed out that the new five-year plan of the department will include a project to allocate a post box for each house. According to the plan the ministry will build ten prefabricated houses every year and each one will have a capacity of 3,000 boxes (30,000 boxes a year).

These houses will be distributed at different areas. The ministry wrote to the municipality to select sites in those areas which are being studied by the muni-cipality. He added that the postal department has now about 75,000 boxes at different post offices. It will also expand these offices to accommodate an additional 30,000 boxes. The ministry has also allocated four prefabricated houses to be used as post offices in Salwa, Abu-Halifa, Jabriya and Andalus areas. Each of them will contain 1,000 boxes. The ministry has also tendered for six more prefabricated houses to offer different postal services with a capacity of 1,000 post boxes each in Rumaithiya, Rigai, Yarmouk, Qortoba and Shuwaikh Industrial Area.

He pointed out that the department contracted to buy two machines to sell postage stamps that will start working within the coming few months in order to reduce pressure and long lines at the post offices. One of them will be installed at Safat Post Office and the other in Salmiya office. The ministry will install more machines in other offices in future, he said.

Awadi pleads for increased UN aid to Palestinians

UNITED NATIONS, June 14, (KUNA): Minister of Planning Abdulrahman Al Awadi of Kuwait said yesterday the new international development strategies of the next decade must be aimed at improving standards of living and enriching the material, spiritual and moral needs of man.

In this context, he appealed for an increase of UN aid to the Palestinian people.

The Kuwaiti cabinet minister told a high-level policy debate of the governing council of UNDP, the UN Development Programme, that during the past few decades Arab and other developing countries have accumulated rich development experience.

Great advances have been made in international co-operation, he told the three-day event that was to end today.

He said international relations should not be limited to trade and the quest for new and expanding markets. Those relations must be humane and should be characterised by co-operation in order to solve the "myriad eco-nomic, social, development and environmental problems around the world.'

Military expenditures divert resources from development and must be reduced, and the arms race should end in order to channei those resources to more productive pursuits.

He noted that the external debt crisis has hampered the ability of many developing countries to meet even their basic needs. In discussing development, the needs and aspirations of peoples under occupation should not be overlooked, he said.

Ayadi called on UNDP to increase its aid to the Palestinian people who he said have launched their intifada to attain their inalienable and legitimate right to self-determination and

Tutu unimpressed by reform plans

SOUTH AFRICA's best known black leaders continue to reject negotiations with the white-led government, despite its new plan to introduce further limited reforms of apartheid.

Some conservative black leaders met a senior cabinet minister earlier this month to discuss limited power-sharing for all races. But political figures of the status of Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu and Zulu chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi are adamant that any meaningful negotia-tions must focus on scrapping the myriad aparthied race segregation laws on the statute books.

On May 9, constitutional development and planning minister Chris Heunis met black leaders representing the National Forum, a new black organisation created by the government, comprised mainly of councillors and former officials from the segregated black townships.

They endorsed what they called evolutionary reform in South Africa. The National Forum currently has members from 206 townships who have met for talks twice this year. Since the May meeting Heunis has resigned from his post as minister responsible for initiating the negotiations, but the government is going ahead with its plans while continuing to reject black majority rule. Blacks, who form 75 per cent of the population, at present have no vote or representation in central government, which is dominated by After the National Forum first met in January, Heunis made a statement which political analysts said was intended to encourage leaders like Tutu and Buthelezi to participate. "South African black leaders should set aside their preconditions and come to the negotiating table now while there is still a majority of whites who want to talk to them." he said.

Those attending the May meeting, however, effectively represented the same constitutencies which had previously shown interest — black township officials and leaders of the tribal black homelands Pretoria created under apartheid. The major figures in black politics — those not in jail, heavily restricted or living in exile — still refuse to talk with the government until it frees political prisoners and lifts bans on black organisations. Soweto township anti-apartheid activist Nthato Motlana believes the government plan will fail unless it involves jailed African National Congress (ANC) leader Nelson Mandela and the ANC in any constitutional talks.

'We know that the government is trying to seduce and co-opt credible black leaders to come to the negotiating table. And they know perfectly well that they can't succeed without them," Motlana said. "Unless credible black leaders are involved in any negotiation, there will be no political solution," Motlana said.

"The government is painfully aware that the homeland leaders and councillors they are so assiduously trying to promote are men of straw, representing no-one," he said.

Alex Boraine, director of the privately funded Institute for a Democratic Alternative in South Africa, told reporters last month: "In the end you have to negotiate with people who have a mandate. who have the necessary support to make a bargain stick. It is impossible to deal the ANC out.'

Critics of the National Forum say its members are not representative of their black communities.

In municipal elections for black town councils last year, only about 17 per cent of eligible voters turned out, according to independent monitoring groups. In Soweto, the biggest township, 10 per cent voted. monitoring groups. In Soweto, the biggest township, 10 per cent voted.

Because the government has outlawed the ANC and severely restricted major black opposition organisations, including the United Democratic Front (UDF) which has millions of supporters, it is hard to assess their exact following.

"I am a leader by default because of the vacuum caused by the detention, imprisonment and banning of real leaders," said Tutu. But Tutu and UDF officials clearly attract widespread support

By contrast, many township councillors were forced to live behind barbed wire during riots in 1985 and 1986 because of their unpopularity. Most are still protected in guarded compounds.

rejecting those who sit down now with the government. Buthelezi dismissed the National Forum in a mid-May press interview: "It must be borne in mind that you will be irrelevant in the

"We are taking advantage of government structures and turning them around for the benefit of the masses," said John Gogotja. president of the Federal Independence Democratic Alliance, which represents several town councils. But Tom Boya, a former township mayor persistently wooed by the

10-year conflict enters new phase

Afghan mujahedeen still pose threat to Kabul

By Jeremy Clift

AFGHAN mujahedeen have failed to produce a knock-out punch but recent attacks on provincial cities show they remain a potent force against the Soviet-backed government in Kabul, diplomats

The battle-hardened Muslim mujahedeen are mounting a series of localised attacks along a 400-mile (600 km) front from the southern city of Kandahar to the eastern town of Jalalabad, the govern-

Since failing in their original objective of capturing Jalalabad, the country's third largest city, as a base for a mujahedeen interim government last March, Pakistan-supplied mujahedeen have taken the 10-year Afghan conflict into a new phase.

Refusing offers of peace negotiations from Kabul following the Soviet military withdrawal from Afghanistan, the rebels are broadening their attacks and have turned down suggestions from Afghan President Najibullah for a ceasefire. Hitting across the mountainous border with Pakistan, the anti-communist mujahedeen have laid siege to the eastern garrison town of Khost and also attacked the city of Gardez to the south of the

So far this month, an Afghan government spokes-man has reported heavy rebel rocketing of Kanda-har and sporadic attacks into Zabol and Ghazni provinces also along the border.

"They failed to produce the knock-out blow by capturing Jalalabad, so now they are trying to spread out and dilute government forces by attacking along a broader front," said one Kabul-based diplomat.

"They can keep this up so long as the weapons convoys keep coming across the border."

Western correspondents have reported continued fighting around the Western city of Herat, where the mujahedeen appear to control parts of the ruined north-western sector of the town.

While the government has broken a rebel blockade of the capital that produced severe food and fuel shortages earlier in the year, mujahedeen continue to hit Kabul with rockets, although in an apparently

The Kabul government spokesman, who rarely admits government casualties, has reported 10 Afghan servicemen killed and 18 injured in fighting in the eastern border provinces of Nangarhar and Khost, around Herat in the west, and in Parwan province north-west of the capital since last Friday.

At least one million people have died in the 10year conflict which has created five million Afghan refugees in Pakistan and Iran.

The government puts rebel casualties in the hundreds every day, saying that many guerrillas die in air strikes and artillery bombardment by Afghan government forces, but there are few independent accounts of the fighting.

Despite the Soviet withdrawal, the mujahedeen still refuse to talk with the Moscow-backed government of President Najibullah, holding his commun. ist-based People's Democratic Party of Afghanistan largely responsible for the conflict But the use of air power by the Kabul government has given it a major strategic advantage, with its Soviet-supplied MiGs making dozens of sorties a day against mujahedeen concentrations around Khost, Jalalabad and Kandahar.

Afghan pilots say they have learnt how to deflect with flares US stinger anti-aircraft missiles which initially downed scores of Soviet helicopters when they were first provided to the mujahedeen by

The Afghan military has also made increased use of Soviet long-range Scud missiles against the muja-hideen. At least three have strayed off-course into Kabul has alleged that the mujahedeen offensive against the university city of Jalalabad, which com-mands the road from the Khyber Pass to the capital, was backed by Pakistani artillery across the border, a claim flatly denied by Islamabad.

Islamabad intelligence apparently pressed the mujahedeen into attacking Jalalabad, shortly after Soviet forces left Afghanistan.

But Afghan government forces held together better than expected by Western military analysts, while the rebels failed to adapt from guerrilla tactics to conventional warfare.

Following battlefield successes, the government of President Najibullah is now feeling more confident that it can hang on for a negotiated peace

It has offered mujahedeen localised autonomy if they will stop fighting.

But while US President George Bush and Pakistan's Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto voiced support last week for a political solution to the conflict, they are still channelling arms to the mujahedeen who remain far from being a spent force, according to diplomats.

"Until the political process gets under way, it's back to the long, hard slog on the battlefield," said one analyst with access to information from both

National catharsis over 1956 revolt in Hungai Nagy reburial on June 16

By Alison Smale

EVERY time book-loving Budapest residents pass a kiosk or street stall these days, a new tome about Imre Nagy and the failed revolt he led against Stalinism in 1956 seems to have hit the stands

The outpouring of literature, accompanied with lapen pins, postcards and large photographs showing Nagy's haunting, bespectacled face, represents a national catharsis over the short-lived 1956 revolt, crushed by Soviet tanks and little discussed in public for almost 33

On June 16, the wave of emotion will peak in the elaborate, nationally televised reburial of Nagy and six associates in the once-forlorn corner of a Budapest cemetery where they lay in unmarked graves for decades.

"It's as if more than 32 years of collective amnesia have suddenly lifted," a Western diplomat said. "Even the people who were on the side of putting down the revolt now suddenly remember where they were and what they did, and are speaking about it."

The ruling Communist Party, which under Janos Kadar executed Nagyand his associates in 1958, has now tried and illegally executed. s of thousands of Hw including emigres returning for the occasion, are expected to jam Budapest's Heroes Square for ceremonies before the reburial. In a move much joked about by Budapest's increasingly outspoken media, authorities have even removed a giant nearby statue of Soviet founder Vladimir I. Lenin — but insist the reason is that it needs urgent repair.

Some Hungarians are tempted to see parallels with the reburial early in October 1956 of former foreign minister Laszio Rajk, executed in a Communist Party purge in 1949. Then, as now, upheaval in Poland and a revision of Stalinist history in the Soviet ple investigating 1956 for the communist tory never repeats itself."

"It is simply unimaginable that in the foreseeable future we could expect an armed uprising," he said. Yet emotions over 1956 clearly play a part in present-day politics. Radical Politburo reformer Imre Pozsgay fired the first shot with his startling announcement on national radio in January that the 1956 revolt was a "popular uprising," and not a counterrevolution, as it officially was branded for 32 years.

The announcement triggered a flood of reminiscences about the revolt and its leaders from historians and surviving relatives.

rehabilitated Nagy in all but name, praising him in a May 31 statement as a symbol of communist reform and a "significant figure" in Hungarian history:

""" On "Friday (June 9)," the supreme became the emotional force month in the first sanctioned edition of prosecutor for the legal rehabilitation of listing and nine of his associates, saying they were unjustly imprisoned, unfairly the US legation for years after the uprising was crushed.

Popular feeling over 1956 has swiing behind reformers such as Poszgay, helping them to bend the ruling communist party's policies firmly in the direction of more change and undermining centrists such as current communist leader Karoly

In May, the party signaled how far it had moved in the year since Grosz succeeded Kadar as general secretary.

Kadar, who took power as the Soviet tanks arrived in 1956, was unceremoniously stripped of the honorary party presidency he was given last year and lost his seat on the central committee, which openly criticized mistakes made during his long rule.

Kadar's departure left unanswered naggring questions about his exact role at the end of the 1956 revolt.

Tocker is confident the lacts will emerge now that, as he says, historians rather than politicians are responsible for examining and interpreting archives and for telling Hungarians their history. A similar process of de-politicizing history and probing into previously unspoken horrors of the past has engulfed the Soviet Union, where the sheer scale of Stalinist terror and the weight of 70 years

Toekei indicated it had nonethless proved difficult to get all the necessary documents about 1956 from the Soviets. Perhaps because of Moscow's current preoccuption with its own history and problems. (AP - Budapest).

Khaddafi seeks friends to end Libyan isolation

By Jonathan Wright

SWALLOWING his distaste for Egypt's Middle East policies, Libyan leader Muammar Khaddafi is moving rapidly towards a reconciliation with Cairo that appears highly popular with his own people.

"It really looks as though Khaddafi is out of his isolation, one ambassador in Tripoli commented this week. "This has made the country as a whole feel much more relaxed.

Education: another casualty of Lebanon's civil war

By Rodeina Kenaan

FIGHTING between Christian and Syrian forces has paralyzed the American University of Beirut, the Middle East's most prestigious academic institute, along with much of Lebanon's educational system. But the university's senior officials are determined to reopen the seaside facility, which has given the Arab world at least three presidents, 10 prime ministers and more than 100 cabinet ministers and ambas-

The 123-year-old school was one month into the 1989 semester when fierce artillery battles flared March 8. Classes were suspended 15 days later, but AUB's acting president, Ibrahim Salti, contends they will resume 48 hours after the fighting stops in the latest round of Lebanon's

14-year-old civil war. The campus drew artillery fire from Christian east Beirut after the Syrians set up gun positions nearby. Despite a shaky cease-fire declared by the Arab League on May 11, Syrian gunners, including those near the AUB, daily shell Christian ports to keep supplies from reaching

Many of the 80-red-roofed stone buildings around the sprawling campus, 73 acres (30 hectares) of gardens and terraces overlooking the Most of the 5,300 Arab, Asian and African students have gone.

The medical school, with 268 students, remained functioning throughout the fighting. Its hospital, the largest in Lebanon with 421 beds, treated 60 casualties an hour during the worst of the shelling. Students at AUB and at other colleges who had hoped to graduate and head for further study in the United States and western Europe have been forced to take shelter in bunkers rather than take exams vital Abdel El-Naser Arayissin, 26, a computer science student at the USaffiliated Beirut University College who is hoping to study in the United States, said: "I'd hoped I could take the summer session and finish the two credits I still need to graduate. "But because of what's happened, I'll have to do another year making up for the one I've lost because of the civil war." In New York, AUB's American President, Dr. Frederick P. Herter, said receptly: "we're prepared to extend the current semester into the summer in order to complete all necessary academic requirements." No one is sure when the AUB will reopen. But Salti stressed: "The AUB is here to stay and here to survive... We'll continue to operate and provide the high educational standards we have long been providing." Lebanon is off-limits for Americans because of the wave of assassinations and kidnappings that engulfed the university, the first to introduce American education into the Middle East and a target for anti-western Muslim fundamentalists.

The AUB was founded in 1866 by Daniel Bliss, an American Protestant missionary who believed the Middle East needed reading and writing more than religion.

Bliss' grandson, AUB President David Dodge, became the first of many kidnap victims in 1982. He reappeared in Damascus, the Syrian capital, a year later.

His successor, Malcolm Kerr, was assassinated by a gunman outside his office Jan 18, 1984.

Soon after, the campus was swept by a wave of abductions, including American librarian Peter Kilburn, seized Dec 1, 1984, and a political nience Professor Leigh Douglas, a Briton, kidnapped March 28, 1986 Their bodies, along with that of another kidnapped British educator, were found in the central mountains April 18, 1986, three days after the US air raids on Libya. They had been killed with gunshots. Two other kidnapped AUB officials — acting dean of agriculture Thomas Sutherland and acting comptroller Joseph Cicippio, both Americans - are still in captivity. Education ministry officials said that if AUB stays closed, so will Beirut's 17 other universities in Muslim and Christian sectors, as well as most of the country's 3,000 schools with a combined enrollment of more than 800,000 students.

Khaled Abdel Samad, director of student affairs at the education ministry, said more than 200,000 students were unable to sit for their baccalaureate, or high school diploma, because of the fighting.

Many schools in and around Beirut have been hit. Four shells blasted the privately run Carmel St. Joseph School in west Beirut, destroying classrooms, the director's office and much of the playground. But classes resumed there last week despite the damage, the only school in the Muslim sector reported to have reopened since the May 11

Iranians urged to obey Khamenei

ATHENS, June 14, (UPI): Members of the Iranian Parliament called on President Ali Khamenei today to pledge allegiance to him as leader of the Islamic Republic, Tehran Radio

The deputies were led by Parliament Speaker Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani. Several groups and organisations have sworn allegiance to Khamenei since he was elected on June 4 to succeed Ayatollah Khomeini as leader of the republic.

Khomeini died on June 3 of a heart attack, following surgery to stop internal bleeding.

Tehran Radio monitored in Athens said the deputies called on Khamenei at the presidential palace and during the ceremon-ies raised the slogan: "To obey Khamenei is to obey the Imam" (Khomeini).

Diplomats said Khamenei and Rafsanjani, both considered moderates or pragmatists, formed an alliance and moved swif-tly to consolidate their hold on Iran in the transition after Khomeini's death.

Commanders of the Iranian Army, Navy and Air Force, who called on Khamenei on Finlay were among the first to declare their allegiance to him. Yesterday, university students marched through the streets of Tehran and other cities to swear allegiance to Khamenci.
Khamenci currently holds the twin offices of president and leader of the Islamic Republic.

Regional diplomats said both offices bore the status of head of state, but constitutionally the "leader" of the republic was a high-ranking clergyman with both political and spiritual Khamenei's second four-vea term as president is due to expire on Oct 9, and the constitution bars him from holding office for a third term.

Rafsanjani, expected to take over as president in October, has received support from both hardline and moderate factions among the ruling clerics, and diplomats said he is probably the most powerful clergyman in Iran after Khomeini's death.

The presidential elections are due on Aug 18, simultaneously with a referendum to amend the constitution, and Rafsaniani is currently the only candidate.

On Monday, the Majlis or parliament re-elected him speaker by 230 votes to 1, with 10 abstentions. Hardline deputies are said to hold a majority of seats in the Majlis, but Monday's vote indicated that Rafsanjani had the support of both hardliners and moderates.

The late Iranian leader,

Khomeini, often seen as implacable behind an icy stare, also wrote romantic poetry, according to a report yesterday. Tehran Television, monitored in Nicosia, broadcast a poem written by Khomeini a few months before his death. Written in the classical Iranian style known as "ghazal", the 14line, sonnet-like poem is addressed to a lover, whose praises the poet sings, and longs to be united

■ The late Iranian leader owned a plot of land and a house in the religious centre of Qom, but no furniture, according to a list of his assets made public today.

The list, compiled in 1981, was a constitutional requirement from senior Iranian officials, their wives and children.

Pahlavi dreams

Opposition is emasculated

NICOSIA, June 14, (Reuter): The heir to the Peacock Throne seemed unable to hide his joy.

"The day of glory has dawned," said Reza Pahlavi in an interview after the death of Iranian leader Ayatollah Khomeini, who came to power in a revolution which toppled Pahlavi's father, Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, in 1979.

"It is in this spirit that we must muster our battalions and that we must march in the direction of restoring our country's freedom." The king of kings and the light of the Aryans, as the Shah preferred to be called, could not bear to see the Islamic revolution put down roots.

His son, speaking on French Radio from his US home after Khomeini's death on June 3, said: "With his (Khomeini's) disappearance, we find the rest of the regime with its hands full of problems. Iranian experts based in Europe, however, say the opposition is so divided and emasculated that it may be a long time before it can pose any real threat to Tehran's clerical leadership. But opposition leaders have joined Pahlavi in predicting the demise of the Islamic republic that Khomeini founded on a wave of anti-Western sentiment. "This is the end of the Khomeini regime. Even if the remnants of the regime try to hold power for a few days, the end of the regime has come," said Massoud Rajavi, leader of Iran's main opposition, the Baghdad-based Mujahedeen-e-Khalq.

Former revolutionary president Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, now an opponent of Tehran based in Paris, has spoken of a civil war similar to the one in Lebanon.

But there is ample evidence that the Islamic republic is well-entrenched despite the death of the man who guided it through 10 years of revolutionary turmoil and a costly eight-year war with Iraq. Judging from the mass emotion generated by Khomeini's death, Pahlavi may never return as the king.

Syrian President Hafez Al Assad, in remarks published Wednesday, warned Lebanon's hard-line Christian forces against using Iraqi-supplied long-range missiles to challenge his Army and threaten the security of his neighbouring country.

"Defence Minister Rabin answered the personal request of Mrs Danielle Mitterrand to allow the release of Terry Boullata for examinations in Paris," the Rabin's spokeswoman said Boullata, 23, who suffers from chronic hepatitis complicated by anacmia, would be released from Tel Mond prison. He did not Boullata, outspoken even among the 20-odd women security prisoners in Tel Mond, has been held since November awaiting trial, charged with membership in the banned Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine. She denies the charge.

Rabin returns to Israel today from France where he attended the Paris Air Show. President Mitterrand had denied Rabin's request to meet.

Danielle Mitterrand relayed a request for Boullata's release through the embassy in Tel Aviv several days ago, the Defence Ministry said.

The decision to release Boullata followed an intense public campaign by her

Senna and Prost to battle

FROM the high altitude of Mexico City and the blistering heat of Phoenix, Arizona, the Grand Prix cavalcade moves north to Montreal for the Canadian Grand Prix on June 18 the last of the three North American races in the 1989 World Championship.

The circuit Gilles Villeneuve, close to Montreal's city centre, is set on the Ille Notre Dame, a man made island on the St Lawrence river, built upon the site of the 1967 World Fair and the attractive rowing basin of the 1976 Olympic Games. The 4.39 kms circuit is popular with the teams present-ing a well balanced mixture of both fast and slow corners in an attractive setting that is a unique combination of a city street track and a more open, faster traditional road circuit.

With Ayrton Senna's victory in Mexico and Alain Prost's win in Phoenix, the two Honda Marlboro McLaren drivers can be expected to provide a thrilling battle in Montreal, especially as Prost has now taken Senna's early season championship lead. While Senna continues to be the pace setter (beating the late Jim Clark's record of 33 pole positions in Phoenix), Prost - despite rumours of retirement - is clearly still ready to snatch vic-tory should the Brazilian hit trouble. It is notable that Prost's leading championship points score includes only one race win - consistent performances, as in previous years, keeping the Frenchman in the hunt. Phoenix was Prost's first ever victory in the USA Grand Prix since he began Formula I racing a decade ago.

Ferrari continue to be McLaren's closest rivals but neither of their two Marlboro supported drivers, Nigel Manshell and Gerhard Berger, have finished in the last two races while Berger has not finished a race since last year's Japanese Grand Prix. Two other Mariboro men who deserve to see the finishing flag again are the March team drivers, Ivan Capelli and Mauricio Gugelmin, who have yet to finish a race with the new March Judd chassis. trade surplus drops

TOKYO, June 14, (AP): Rising imports helped reduce Japan's trade surplus in May to $3.78 billion, down 27 per cent from a year earlier and 48 per cent from the previous month, the Finance Ministry announced today.

In April, the country's trade surplus rose 7.7 per cent from the previous year to $7.30 billion, while in May 1988 it was $5.19

Ministry officials attributed the smaller-than-expected unadjusted surplus for May to an increase in the pace fo import growth, which they said resisted the yen's relative weakness against the dollar compared to its vear-earlier level.

The ven's relative weakness in May also tended to shrink the dollar-based surplus figure, after adjustment from yen, they said.

Exports in May rose 4.9 per cent from the previous year to $21.67 billion, while imports climbed 15.7 per cent to $17.89

Japan's Iraq rebuilds war-ruined Basra

BAGHDAD, June 14, (Agencies): Iraq today finished a $3.2 billion phase in the reconstruction of Basra, its second biggest city, battered by eight years of war with Iran.

"The roaring thunder of cranes, shovels and buildozers has taken the place of bomb explosions," said the official INA news agency, desribing work in the southern city by more than 20,000 labourers, engineers and tech-

Egyptians, Sudanese and Somalis have joined Iraqis in clearing rubble, erecting buildings and bridges and repairing roads and services in Basra, the country's main port with a population of one million before the war began in 1980. Officials say shelling killed 2,000 civilians and damaged thousands of buildings. Iranian troops reached the outskirts of the city and fighting raged across the Faw peninsula to the south, closing Iraq's outlets to the sea.

President Saddam Hussein ordered the reconstruction of the city after a ceasefire halted hostilities last August.

We want to tell Iran that time and life are for construction, not for destruction," he told visiting Iraqi Americans

Authorities in Basra today celebrated the completion of the construction phase, which officials have said cost one billion dinars ($3.2 billion) - double initial estimates.

Official reports have said a large drin-king water project has been built and a 33-km (20-mile) motorway near the city opened last month.

Five road bridges have been erected, 26 repaired and 10 power stations built, the reports said. Schools and offices were repaired and civilians given money to rebuild damaged homes.

Basra oil refinery, damaged in the war, reopened in April after one plant that processes 70,000 barrels of oil per day was repaired. Repairs on a second plant of the same capacity are under way.

The city lies on the Shatt Al Arab

Baghdad, in stalled talks with Tehran to negotiate a lasting peace, has sought agreement on dredging the waterway completely. Iran wants Iraqi troops to leave several hundred square kilometres of its territory first. Iraq has said that a reconstruction drive convering the Faw peninsula will begin on June 25.

Anwar Sa'eed Al Hadithi, who was a driving force behind the massive reconstruction programme, noted recently,

"We will sweat as much blood as we spilled defending Basra to make it the pearl of the Gulf."

The Iraqis consider Basra, founded 1.400 years ago and once known as the Venice of the East because of its network of canals, symbolizes their defence against repeated Iranian offensive during the war.

Iran insists that a 1975 agreement drawing the southern border down the middle of the waterway is still valid.

But Baghdad says that treaty was abrogated before the war broke out in September 1980 and that the frontier lies averaging double taxation.

Al Khaled said he was quite satisfied with the outcome of his talks with Prime Minister Mischieslaw Rakowski and senior government officials, adding that his country values Poland's industrial advancement which, he said, is a key factor for the launching of joint ventures.

He also praised the performance of Polish companies operating in Kuwait.

ACC expected to enhance economic ties

Group may set up investment firms

CAIRO, June 14, (AP): Government leaders of Jordan, North Yemen and Iraq arrived today to prepare for the second summit of the economic-oriented Arab Cooperation Council (ACC) which will be inaugurated by their heads of state tomorrow. Egypt's Prime Minister Atef Sedki welcomed his Jordanian and North Yemenicounterparts, Zeid Bin Shaker and Abdel-Aziz Abdel-Ghani, and Taha Yassin Ramadan, Iraq's First Deputy Prime Minister, at Cairo International Airport.

"We look forward to complete co-ordination in the economic, political and social fields. This will take place gradually," Sedki said. His comments were carried by the Middle East News Agency.

The four men are scheduled to start talks tonight to prepare for the second summit session, June 15-17, of the four-month-old ACC which is patterned after the European Economic Community and is expected to enhance economic ties. The first session was held in Baghdad, Iraq last February. media reports say a third summit session will be held in Sanaa, North Yemen, next September, and the fourth in Amman, Jordan by next February.

The summit was scheduled to be held last month in the Mediterranean port city of Alexandria but was postponed to express the sympathy of member states for the death of Iraq's Defence Minister, Gen. Adnan Khairallah, who was killed in a helicopter crash in northern President Hosni Mubarak will tomorrow welcome Jordan's King Hussein, North Yemen's President Ali Abdullah Saleh and Iraq's President Saddam Hussein and accompany them by train through the Nile Delta to Alexandria where the summit will be inaugurated.

The ACC is designed primarily to boost economic and trade ties. But the leaders are also expected to discuss political and military co-operation.

Set up amid discontent with the Arab League's failure to promote unity, the ACC has been seen as a counterweight to... the economically-powerful six-year-old GCC.

Also in February, Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, Libya and

the Arab Maghreb Union.
But following last month's display of unity at an Arab summit in Morocco, officials have been keen to point out that the three groups will work within the 22member Arab League.

"All these councils are in the framework of the Arab League. The whole ambition is to make from all Arab countries a bloc similar to the European Economic Community, diplomat said. Egyptian officials said the summit would discuss setting up new investment companies and promoting freedom of movement and equal job rights for the bloc's 80 million people. The ACC aims to double trade between member states over the next few years, they said. Egypt's trade with Jordan is currently worth $350 million annually, with Iraq, $500 million and with North Yemen, $40 million, they said.

On the political front, the leaders would discuss Lebanon and the Middle East conflict. But analysts differ as to how strongly political and military overtones will figure.

Dollar steady, gold

LONDON, June 14, (Reuter): The prospect of important US economic data over the next two days kept European financial markets quiet and nervous

The dollar ended little changed in settled conditions after choppy trading earlier in the day.

"The dollar is still well bid but things are quiet ahead of the (US) trade number tomorrow and inflation number Friday," one trader at a US bank in London said. A Reuter survey in New York shows a forecast average of $8.3 billion for the April trade deficit after an $8.9-billion shortfall in March.

"Unless the figure is way out of line, it will almost certainly spark fresh dollar buying," one trader in London said.

"A good number will see the (US) bond market rally and people will buy dollars to buy bonds." Friday's US consumer price index, America's main inflation indicator, will also be closely wat-

Traders said a high inflation number could push the dollar up as it would suggest the US Central Bank, the Federal Reserve, did not have room to ease interest rates.

The dollar's continuing sensitivity to develop-ments in China was underlined when it jumped on a rumour that Chinese troops had stormed the US embassy in Peking but this was later denied by the US State Department.

Gold ended slightly higher at $361.50 an ounce in extremely quiet trade in London against yesterday's finish of $359.25. Dealers said the bullion market lacked any impetus ahead of the US trade data.

Telephone expansion plan cut to save money

AMMAN, June 14, (Reuter): Jordan, locked into an IMF-approved austerity programme, has slashed spending on a five-year telephone network expansion plan, an official said today. The Telecommunications Corporation (TCC) is now preparing a new contingency plan to meet 8 directive to cut capital expenditure to an absolute minimum," TCC director general Mohammed Shahid Ismail told Reuters.

The cabinet decided yesterday to cut capital spending by cancelling all but one of the international tenders floated over the past year under the TCC's expansion plan due to end in

The official news agency Petra said the cabinet had set the TCC a spending ceiling of 30 million dinars ($52 million), but Ismail said no exact amount had been

The TCC originally aimed to add 240,000 lines to the national network at a cost of 104 million dinars ($181 million), with the help of a $36 million World Bank

The scheme was pared down last year to 68 million dinars ($118 million).

Ismail said last year's cutback was within the options defined in original tenders but these would now be scrapped and new ones He said he hoped 60,000 to

65,000 new lines could be installed under the smaller budget, but it would take at least until the end of the year to revise the

France's Alcatel was due later this month to finalise a 54.5 million franc ($8 million) contract signed with the TCC late last year to expand the switching system. Ismail said the contract would be scaled down and ren-

The TCC terminated a consultancy contract with Sweden's Swedtel a week ago. It had been running for a year and had been intended to last throughout the five-year plan, Ismail said.

REGULATIONS organising the activities of the Kuwaiti investment and real estate funds will shortly be issued, the daily Al Seyassah quoted a financial source as saying.

The Legal Opinion and Legislation Committee has referred the relevant draft bill to the cabinet for endorsement and sources said that it is hoped that by the end of the summer, subscriptions to these funds will

Meanwhile, the dealing organisation committee of the investment funds held its meeting at the Kuwait Stock Market. The executive bylaws clarifying details of the proposed regulation were discussed at the meeting which was presided over by the chairman of the Technical Bureau at Kuwait Bourse, Dr Saafaq Al Rukaibi.

The general features of the executive bylaws have been described as good, according to the Director of Al Shal Company for Consulting and Real Estate Services, Abdurahman Al Humoud. He added that the companies dealing with the investment funds should follow a conservative policy particularly towards utilising funds of depositors and Humoud said that the investment and real estate firms will practice activities under the supervision of Kuwait Stock Market while the companies supervised by the Central Bank will practice activities under the bank's supervision. He expressed the hope that the investment funds will enhance the activities at the Bourse and eventually create a conducive climate for investment activities and expanding the investors base. But he said that such funds will take a long time to show a positive reflection in the

According to the executive bylaws of the investment funds, the investment companies shall undertake to issue the necessary reviews weekly clarifying revenues through its sales transactions and the profits. The official said that the relevant committee shall finalise the executive bylaws this month.

He clarified that the committee comprises representatives from Kuwait Stock Exchange Market, Al Shal Company for Consulting and Real Estate Services, Kuwait Finance House (KFH) and Kuwait based Gulf Investments Corporation (GIC).

With regard to the subscription process in the investment funds, the official said that this will be done upon obtaining the approval of Kuwait's Ministry of Commerce and Industry and the approval of the Kuwait Central Bank in case the relevant company was subject to the bank's supervision.

BELGRADE, June 14, (Reuter): Prime Minister Ante Markovic said today Yugoslavia had reached agreement with the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Bank on $1.5 billion in fresh credits over the next five years. "We have agreed in principle with the IMF for them to extend a stand-by arrangement from one year to 18 months," Mark-ovic told the Yugoslav parliament.

"The IMF should also secure a credit of $500 million of which we would receive $100 million this Yugoslavia signed a one-year stand-by agræment with the IMF worth $420 million on last June 28.

Grappling with hyperinflation running at 601.6 per cent annually, Yugoslavia has asked the IMF to help it reschedule part of its $23 billion foreign debt and get fresh loans to restructure its sagging economy.

LONDON, JUNE 14, REUTER - SHARE PRICES WERE MIXED IN CAUTIOUS LATE BUSINESS AGAINST THE BACKGROUND OF A SIMILAR TRADING PATTERN ON WALL STREET, WHILE STERLING HELD ABOVE ITS EARLIER LOWS, DEALERS SAID.

ALTHOUGH THE PACE OF RECENT STERLING DECLINES APPEARS TO HAVE SLOWED, THE MARKET REMAINS NERVOUS ABOUT FURTHER POSSIBLE FALLS AND RENEWED UPWARD PRESSURE ON BASE RATES. TOMORRON'S EUROPEAN ELECTIONS, RELEASE OF U.S. APRIL TRADE DATA, AND U.K. APRIL AVERAGE EARNINGS FIGURES ARE MAJOR

HURDLES FOR THE POUND, DEALERS SAID. BY 1505 GMT THE FTSE INDEX WAS 1.9 UP AT 2,124.9. ONE DEALER SAID, "THE MAIN REASON BEHIND THE MARKET'S RECENT RESILIENCE APPEARS TO BE THE OLD FEAR OF BEING LEFT BEHIND BY A WAVE OF INSTITUTIONAL BUYING IF STERLING GETS LET OFF THE HOOK

THE POUND FINISHED ONE BASIS POINT DOWN AT 90.7 ON A TRADE WEIGHTED BASIS, HAVING GAINED MODEST GROUND AGAINST THE DOLLAR BUT CLOSED LOWER AGAINST THE MARK AT 3.0707. STERLING SHOWED VULNERABILITY EARLIER, DIPPING TO A LOW OF

90.5 AFTER RENEWED DOLLAR STRENGTH. MANY DEALERS FEEL THAT A CLUTCH OF ADVERSE INFLUENCES TOHORROW MAY WELL PUSH BASE RATES HIGHER IN THE IMMEDIATE TERM BUT A RISE OF ONE, NOT TWO POINTS, SEEMS MORE LIKELY.

Precious Metals

LONDON, JUNE 14, REUTER - GOLD BULLION ENDED THE SESSION QUIETLY STEADY, CLOSING AT 361.25/361.75 DLRS AN OUNCE, SLIGHTLY UP FROM TUESDAY'S 359.00/359.50 CLOSE AND COMPARED WITH AN AFTERNOON FIX OF 361.10 DLRS.

DEALERS SAID GOLD TRADED IN A DULL RANGE THROUGHOUT THE DAY WITH OPERATORS UNABLE TO GLEAN FRESH INCENTIVES FROM A FEATURELESS COMEX MARKET. PRECIOUS METALS ARE EXPECTED TO REMAIN SIDELINED AHEAD OF TOMORROW'S U.S. TRADE DATA.

PLATINUM CLOSED AT 484/485 DLRS AN OUNCE AGAINST TUESDAY'S 482/483, FIRMING SLIGHTLY ON NEWS OF A STRIKE AT METALLURGIE HOBOKEN-OVERPELT'S HOBOKEN PLANT IN BELGIUM.

London Money Market

LONDON, JUNE 14, REUTER - U.K. MONEY MARKET RATES FIRMED SLIGHTLY IN THE AFTERNOON AS STERLING SHOWED RENEWED SIGNS OF WEAKNESS, DEALERS SAID. IN LATE TRADING THE BENCHMARK THREE-MONTH INTERBANK RATE WAS AT 14-9/16 1/2 FROM 14-1/2 3/8 LAST NIGHT.

FOR MOST OF THE DAY, THE MARKET RELAXED A LITTLE AND MARKED TIME AMEAD OF KEY DATA AND EUROPEAN ELECTIONS LATER THIS WEEK. BUT THERE WAS STILL WIDESPREAD NERVOUSNESS ABOUT A HIKE IN BASE RATES IF STERLING FALLS FURTHER. "WE LIVE FROM MINUTE TO MINUTE. IT (A RATE RISE) COULD HAPPEN AT ANY TIME," SAID A TRADER AT A U.K. BANK.

Wall Street Market Report

NEW YORK, June 14, (Reuter): Wall Street stocks showed little change by midday after an early gain and then a fall on futures-related selling, traders said. The gain came on a rise in bonds and the dollar on rumours of new unrest in China. However, the US denied a rumour that troops had invaded its embassy in Peking, and the dollar pulled back.

Programme selling dulled down blue chips, before the market levelled off. The Dow was down about a point at 2503 and declining issues held a small advantage over gainers. "Aside from takeover interest, the market has been concerned with the strong dollar," said First Albany analyst Hugh Johnson.

"NO ONE WANTS TO MAKE A COMMITMENT IN THIS TIME OF GENERAL MALAISE," SAID JAMES TREGEAR, MANAGER OF JAPANESE EQUITIES FOR S.G. WARBURG SECURITIES (JAPAN) LTD. "THERE'S STILL TALK OF THE BANK OF JAPAN BEING FORCED TO DO SOMETHING, WHICH MEANS A RESUMPTION OF FEARS OF ODR (OFFICIAL DISCOUNT RATE) OR SHORT-TERM RATE HIKES." VOLUME WAS A VERY LIGHT 450 MLN SHARES AGAINST 500 MLN ON THE MIKKEI WAS DOWN AS MUCH AS 195.78 POINTS TO 33,017.77

IN LATE MORNING TRADE ON CURRENCY WORRIES, BUT TRUST FUND BLYING AND BARGAIN-HUNTING HELP PRICES RECOVER. BROKERS SAID. "THIS IS A VERY DIFFICULT MARKET," SAID MICHIO SUGITA, HEAD TRADER FOR DB CAPITAL MARKETS (ASIA) LTD. WHITH SO LITTLE TURNOVER, PRICES CAN FLUCTUATE WIDELY."

INVESTORS ARE LARGELY SIDELINED BECAUSE THE HEAK YEN MAKES DOLLAR-DENOMINATED ASSETS MORE ATTRACTIVE, SUGITA SAID. THE BROADER FIRST SECTION INDEX, OR TOPIX, EDGED UP 8.68 POINTS TO 2,472.82 AFTER DROPPING 19.62 ON TUESDAY.

INDEX-LINKED BUYING OUT OF SOME 150 BILLION YEN OF INVESTMENT TRUST FUNDS AVAILABLE TODAY BROUGHT THE NIKKE! INDEX UP DESPITE AN OVERALL DEPRESSED MARKET, BROKERS SAID. FALLS EDGED RISES 437 ISSUES TO 425 WITH 211 UNCHANGED.

Shares recover

Cable and Wireless profits up

International communications group Cable and Wireless PLC today announced strong annual results which revived its share value after reverses caused by turmoil in China.

The London-based group, which relies on its Hong Kong operations for 75 per cent of its earnings, reported pre-tax profits up £64 million ($97.3 million) or 15 per cent to £420 million ($638.4 million) for the year ending in March.

The figures, boistered by a strong US dollar to which the Hong Kong dollar is tied, were in line with the top end of market predictions.

The results helped shore up C and W's share price which had fallen after the June 4 military crackdown on pro-democracy protesters in China which raised questions about the future of

Shares jumped 13 pence (19.8 cents) to £4.92 ($7.48) in a falling London market in mid-morning

The shares had peaked this year, on May 18, at £5.80 ($8.82). Share analysts had predicted that uncertainty over the post-1997 era in the long-term telecommunications business would overshadow the group's results and its promising international expansion.

But a profit result by subsidiary Mercury was a welcome boost. Mercury, the only rival to the former public monopoly British Telecommunications PLC, recorded its first profit at £18 million ($27.4 million).

BA sacks Uganda manager

NAIROBI, June 14. (UPI): British Airways sacked its manager for Uganda, Joe Ager, one day after he was arrested by plain-clothes police and placed in detention without charges, a spokesman for the airline said today.

John Story, BA's Nairobibased manager for Africa, told United Press International the airline has no idea why Ager, a Kenyan national, was arrested, nor has it made any effort to inquire with authorities or to contact the man's family. "I had a call from the police on the afternoon of May 23 saying they were detaining him," Story said in a telephone interview. "He left our employment on May 24 (because) he was being detained by the police and therefore was unable to do his

Asked if he had inquired about the reasons for Ager's arrest, Story said, "the police just said he was detained and that was that." He said Ager's job in Kampala had already been refilled with a British national, Neil Steffan.

Story was unsure how long Ager had worked for the airline but said it was "a number of years." He said he believed Ager was transferred to Kampala to serve as BA manager for Uganda around the beginning of the year.

Friends of Ager's family said they suspected Ager's arrest was related to his employment in Uganda, which is suffering strained relations with Kenya following a series of border incidents since March. However Story said, "I have not heard anything about that." Family friends said Ager was seized by plainclothes police in the middle of a public meeting at a Nairobi hotel on May 23 and has not been seen since.

World Bank approves $1.5b loans for Mexico

WASHINGTON, June 14, (AP): The World Bank announced yesterday that it had approved a $1.5-billion package of loans to Mexico, with as much as $375 million of the money set aside to support the Bush administration's Third World debt reduction plan.

With the approval, Mexico became the first country to gain money for debt relief from the 151-nation lending institution as part of the debt initiative launched by Treasury Secretary

Nicholas Brady on March 10. World Bank officials said they, hoped that the approval would be enough to break a stalemate in debt reduction talks between Mexico and its creditor banks, which are currently underway in New York.

"This is the first time, ever, that the bank has made provisions to finance debt relief for one of its member countries, and the approval of these loans constitutes a milestone in the 43-year history of the institution," World Bank president Barber

Conable told a news conference. Today's action signals the bank's determination to become more involved in solving the problem of Third World debt, within the framework of the

Brady initiative," Conable said. In one of the Bush administration's first international initatives, Brady announced in early March a programme to encourage commercial banks to voluntarily forgive a portion of the $1.3-trillion debt burden being carried by Third World

The Brady plan envisioned that the World Bank and its sister organisation, the International the bulk of enticements the commercial banks would require for the debt relief effort to succeed.

But so far the Brady plan has met with lukewarm support from the commercial banks, who contend that the resources being discussed by the two international lending organisations are not sufficient to accomplish the scale of debt relief being demanded by debtor countries.

The stalemate is a blow to the administration, which is hoping to have a successful Mexican debt package completed in time for Bush's trip to the economic summit of major industrial nations in Paris today. The hope is that an agreement with Mexico would serve as a model for debt relief programmes for other heavily indebted countries.

Jordan and India plan joint ventures

AMMAN, June 14, (Reuter): Jordanian and Indian businessmen have agreed to set up three phosphate-related joint ventures worth $1.2 billion, they said

"There is a tentative agreement on three phosphate projects worth about $1.2 billion," Khaldoon Abu Hassan, president of Jordan's Chamber of Industry told Reuters.

"There are also negotiations (for India) to buy 500,000 tonnes of Jordanian cement," he added. but did not say how much the sale would be worth.

Raunaq Singh, head of the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry, told Reuters he would sign two agreements with the Jordan Phosphate Mines Company and a group of Jordanian businessmen covering projects worth $400 million each, one to be set up in Jordan and the other in India.

Abu Hassan and Singh said details of the agreements, and others reached during a two-day investment conference that ended in Amman today, would be announced tomorrow.

Jordan's exports to India, mainly rock phosphates and phosphate products, were worth $110 million in 1988. The kingdom is India's main source of the fertiliser base. Indian exports to Jordan, mainly spices, tea and textiles totalled $10 million last year.

Turmoil seen hurting economies of China, Hong Kong China paying higher price for loans

HONG KONG, June 14, (AP): The turmoil in China will badly hurt the economies of China and neighbouring Hong Kong as foreign businessmen have been jolted into reality from dreams of the great China markets, analysts say.

The region's economic power-houses — Japan, South Korea and Taiwan - are likely to be only slightly hurt. Analysts say these nations will shift their trade, investment and manufacturing activities from China and Hong Kong — which reverts to Chinese rule in 1997 — to more stable Southeast Asia.

China's turmoil thus could prove a windfall for Thailand, Indonesia, the Philippines and other nations that, like China, have low labour costs and are eager for investment to help their economies take off. Bangkok and Manila already have taken steps to attract investors frightened by China.

Jordan Airspace formed

New firm to produce TH-330 helicopter

PARIS, June 14. (AP): Schweizer Aircrast Corp. of the United States and the government-backed Jordanian Technology Group signed an agreement yesterday at the Paris air show forming Jordan's first aircraft production company.

The new company, to be called Jordan Airspace, will produce the TH-330 helicopter for export to clients in the Middle East, according to the company's spokesman, Rana Abu-Odeh.

The deal was signed by Paul Schweizer for the Schweizer Corp., Dr Bader El-Din Amin for the Jordan Technology Group and Grant Rogan for Airspace Marketing Services, an offshore air company based in Cyprus.

The Jordan Technology Group will hold a 50 per cent share of the new venture with Schweizer taking 35 per cent and Airspace Marketing Services 15 per cent.

Jordan Airspace, whose new director has not yet been named, is to start production of the TH-330 helicopter at the end of the summer.

The private Jordanian company will start producing two parts for the helicopter and increase to as many as 30 companies, to be exported to Schweizer in Elmira, New York. About 100 helicopters are expected to be produced over the next five years. First delivery is scheduled for the end of 1990.

The aircraft, which will sell for $389,000, is to be produced in Jordan where labour costs are less and existing facilities can be used, Miss Abu-Odeh said.

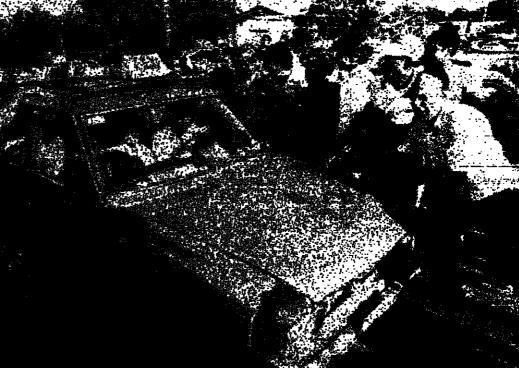

The new company plans to employ workers trained in the Jordan Air Force to federal aviation administration standards.

The helicopter, which can seat three to four people, can be used for training purposes, commer-cial flights, crop spraying or military missions, according to information available at the air

Ministers approve Soviet trade talks

LUXEMBOURG, June 14, (AP): European foreign ministers yester-day gave their approval to start as soon as possible negotiations that could lead to increased trade and economic co-operation between the European Economic Community and the Soviet Union. Nico Wegter, spokesman for the 12-nation trading bloc, said the foreign ministers gave a mandate for the talks to the European Commission, the community's executive body. The talks will centre on a number of areas, including science and technology, economic, monetary and banking questions, protection of the environment and agriculture. Wegter said the European Economic Community would be prepared to discuss co-operation in nuclear research, including the safety aspects of nuclear energy.

No specific timetable was set for the talks. In advance of the negotiations, the community and the Soviet Union have held a series of meetings, described as exploratory talks.

During the initial contacts, community officials said the Soviets indicated they would be interested in an accord with the richer European countries.

The community, excluding Greece, imported nearly $13 billion worth of goods from the Soviet Union last year and exported products worth about $10 billion. It had a 1988 trade deficit with Moscow of nearly $3 billion. Last June, the trading bloc signed a declaration establishing official relations with the Soviet-led socialist economic bloc, called the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance. The landmark declaration ended three decades of estrangement between Europe's economic halves.

Moscow's partners in COMECON are East Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania, plus Vietnam,

Cuba and Mongolia. Since then, the community has signed a trade and co-operation agreement with Hungary and a trade accord in manufactured goods with Czechoslovakia. Talks on trade pacts have also been held with Poland, Bulgaria and East Germany.

He said his firm saw a slight decline in exports — less than 0.6 per cent — and a 1.8 per cent rise in imports, Analyst Greg Jones of MMS International also predicted a bigger deficit, though with better results further along. 'We're looking for a $9.5-billion deficit for the month, a slight worsening," he said. However, he added: "The overall trend in the deficit is improving, but at a slower pace."

The US trade deficit in 1987 was a record

$152.2 billion. In 1988 it was $119.8 billion.

The deficit has been falling in recent mon-dom below $10 billion. This year's monthly high has been $9.8 billion. Jones said oil would be a villain in tomorrow's trade figures because of higher prices, not increased use.

Also, he added, the rising value of the dollar against major foreign currencies is a growing problem.

"Some people think this might turn the trade picture around, back to $150-billion deficits, but we don't think so. Despite the dollar, American firms are more competitive now," he said. Gay said that over the past year American exports had been strong in capital goods, chemicals, processed foods, paper and consumer goods, except cars, McAuley said his projected $9.8-billion deficit for April would reflect export figures about equal to March or slightly below.

Stars give themselves a treat

By Firoze Rangoonwalla

WHILE most of the bigger stars flew off to foreign lands for stage shows or outdoor shootings, some of those left behind themselves a treat and a media blitz in Bollywood. Demure Dipika who is desperate to shed the 'holy Sita image' of the Ramavana serial threw a birthday party for the first time. It was a timely one, as she is seeking new roles when the serial ends. Nobody knows her real date of birth or age. Dipika dressed in the traditional Indian Gujarati style received guests, hoping to break the orthodox image.

The ice was broken when Ramayan Sagar gave her a warm hug. Others followed. But the "Ramayana" ghost kept chasing her, as the whole team was present. Arun Govil (Rama), Arvind Trivedi (Ravana). Dara Singh (Hanuman) gave her bouquets. Not to be seen was Sanjay Jog (Bharat) who had had a romantic row with her recently. Dipika's day however was made as big film makers like S. Ramanathan, Raj Sippy etc. attended and also promised her roles.

The incurable birthday boy Jeetendra celebrated yet another birthday. His many producers greeted him, some with cakes. But the one that took the cake was: one in the shape of a snake by Harmesh Malhotra of Nagina and Nigahen. When Jeetu cut it, people said 'Gawd...how are we going to digest that." But snakes are successful these days in films, so you have to lum the cake, fangs and all. After all the same was done to Rishi (for Shehnaag) and Sunny (for Nigahen.)

A better cake for Jeetu came from the producer of Majboor.

Jaya Prada was there to greet the hero with a gift. These days Jaya seems very keen to be seen and attends awards functions, held by the Lions Club as well as private organisers, where she also gives extempore interviews.

The Lions of Chembur arranged one such show at Shanmukhananda Hall, where they gave several awards. A.K. Hangal raised a row by refusing to give the award to gas-bag Jankidas. The incurable award-giver Ravi Sharma who runs All India Associations (with invisible members) also gave away some more prizes, to the Ramayana unit as well as others. The music stage shows along with the star presence brought in the lolly.

The talent contest organised by the Bagpiper people brought their harvest at a glamorous show. Talents had been short-listed at three other cities and the Bombay show, with noted producers as judges, brought forth Bombay's Jyotsna Malhan as the future heroine, Calcutta's Krishna Mohan as hero and Siddique Ismail as character actor from Madras. Suresh Oberoi now devalues the national award he got for Mirch Masala, since it is becoming old hat. He says it did not help him in any way. He also said that even Om Puri could buy a flat for himself, not with his awards but with the money be received from commercial films.

Manoj Kumar's Clerk proved a flop as expected, because of too much attention on self. The film was even made out to be a harbinger of Indo-Pak harmony and further friendship. But the photos of Mohd. Ali and Zeba were hardly seen on posters or other publicity. They were not given to the press. The only ones prominent were those of Manoj himself and Rekha or Anita Raj to some extent. The defenders started with three rounds of diamonds, declarer ruffing the last of these. He had nine fast tricks and the 10th could come from a finesse in either hearts or clubs. Now we know many players who would try both and bemoan their fate when both lost and they went down a trick. Others would look for the sure-trick line that exists, as the cards lie.

Declarer should draw two rounds of trumps, ending in dummy. Next comes the jack of diamonds and, when East produces the queen, declarer should discard a club instead of ruffing. Assuming trumps are 2-2, as they were, East is endplayed. Whether he leads a club or a heart, he must give declarer a free finesse.

Imelda and Ferdie's dangerous life

High jinks in Manila

By lan Brown

IT IS a saga of sex, violence. and corruption. There's a cast of presidents, royals, film stars and international crooks.

The leading characters are a cold-blooded murderer and an exotic and ruthless woman with a lust for possessions and power -- a woman who would think nothing of spending 30 million dollars on her home and half a million dollars a day on herself.

It's the most dramatic story of the century - and amazingly, according to a new book, it's all TRUE.

The couple are ex-President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines and his wife Imelda. Both are awaiting trial in New York charged with plundering their impoverished country's treasury of 100 million dollars to buy property and paintings in America during their 20 years in power. The case keeps being postponed because of the failing health of the 71-yearold ex-President Marcos, now confined to a wheelchair. Imeida, as glamorous as ever though approaching 60, lives in great style in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel in New Her extravagance is already legendary. When she fled with her husband from the Philippines after being overthrown in 1986, Imelda left behind in their Manilla palace 3000 pairs of shoes, 500 brassieres, some of them bulletproof, 2000 evening dresses and 1000 pairs of sexy stockings.

But in his book The Marcos Dynasty Sterling Seagrave gives many more previously unrevealed examples of the astonishing lifestyle of the beautiful and vain woman whose poverty-stricken childhood fostered an obsession for amassing wealth. This lengthy and meticulously researched documents details in full, for

According to the book when he was a young lawyer Ferdinand Marcos was convicted of murdering his square the judge so that he was set free.

He made up a different background for himself and claimed that he fought against the Japanese in the war when, in fact, he collaborated with

And his marriage to Imelda was a bigamous one. He already had a wife and three children. During his 20 years as President, the Philippines became, according to Mr Seagrave "an international hub for money-laundering, narcotics traffic, gambling, white slavery and child prostitution. And the President continuously robbed his country of millions of dollars and sanctioned the torture of political prisoners.

The book describes how Marcos was supported by the Americans as a bulwark against a communist take-intriguing. From an early age, she showed the same determination to succeed as her husband had done. For

The extraordinary goings-on of Ferdinand and Imelda Marcos are now chronicled in a new book 'The Marcos Dynasty' by Sterling Seagrave. This lengthy and meticulously researched book details in full for the first time, the extent of the Marcos' corruption and their chaotic personal life.

Divorce was not possible, nor could she stop her husband from seeing Carmen. She decided to keep quiet, but she became even more determined to use Marcos to provide what she really wanted from him - limitless money and possessions. Whims

Once he had become President, Marcos was in a position to indulge his wife's whims, but he could never have imagined the extent of her extravagance in the years that followed.

Seagrave describes how she organised the building of a 30 million dollar pink palace. with a grand ballroom for receptions and silver his-andher thrones set before a faintly erotic floor-to-ceiling painting of Imelda rising from the sea like a Botticelli Venus.

Imelda became an avid collector of houses, jewellery, clothes and particularly, paintings. She always insisted on a discount when buying paintings, so some galleries automatically raised their prices by 25 per cent when they learned she was coming then gave her a 15 per cent

She held a Christmas drive on behalf of the poor — a traditional job for the President's wife. But Imelda insisted that all the cheques be made out to her personally and the poor never saw the money. In future years, donors sent goods, not money.

Imelda's parties were legendary. She showered her guests with gifts and once sent two Philippine Air Force planes to Australia to bring back a cargo of clean white sand and seashells for a beach party. Top businessmen and politicians from all over the world came to her parties. She wrote and performed her own songs and once played a piano duet with Richard Nixon.

She had her own private discos, littered with gaudy cushions embroidered with slogans like "Good girls go to heaven, bad girls go verywhere", "Nouveau riche s better than no riche at all" and "You're twisted, warped, deprayed, wicked, perverted, sick and rotten to the core - I like that in a person.

When Imelda took her daughter on a shopping spree in America in 1968, the two ladies spent a total of 3.3 million dollars in eight weeks — around 100,000 dollars each shopping day — in fashionable boutiques.

In 1982, Imelda spent 100 million dollars building a centre to house a film festival. More than 4,500 celebrities from all over the world were invited and in the end the country's leading bank had to cough up four million dollars for the festival expenses.

Stars like George Hamilton, Sylvester Stallone, Jeremy Irons, Peter O'Toole and Franco Nero were among those who downed limitless champagne and danced attendence on the sprightly Imelda.

A similar festival the following year was a flop, and this time Imelda incurred the wrath of church leaders by underwriting the costs by special performances of pornographic movies in the local theatres.

As well as giving lavish parties, Imelda attended most of the best around the world. When British royalty was involved she usually wangled things so that she sat next to Prince Charles or Lord Mountbatten.

Marcos with a guest at his silver anniversary, party

Seagrave also chronicles, the rumours that Imelda herself was gay. She is reputed to have had a lesbian affair with Christian Ford, wife of Henry Ford II. Imelda's husband was the opposite, and he had several affairs, the most notable being with a beautiful young blonde called Dovie Beams

The far-sighted Miss Beams left a tape recorder running while she made love with the President and when inevitably she was dropped by him, Dovie called a press conference and played one of the tapes, complete with moans, groans, creaking bed and love song everyone knew to be Marcos's favourite. Although Dovie said her lover's name was Fred, the voice of Marcos was easily recognisable. Reporters made copies of the tapes, then sold

One got into the hands of student protestors at the University of the Philippines. They commandeered a radio station and broadcast the tape and soon the nation was listening in astonishment to their President begging Dovie Beams.

Every day for a week, the boomed out over the university loudspeakers until troops were called in to confiscate the tapes. Dovie was eventually paid off and went to live in Los Angeles where, at another press conference, she produced items of the President's clothing, and additional tapes which she threatened to turn over to a laboratory for identification. The furious Imelda sent emissaries to Los Angeles to persuade Dovie to turn over her treasured mementoes.

Best friends; the Marcoses and the Reagans

According to the book, Marcos built up most of his fortune with bullion known as Yamashita's Gold, named after a Japanese general who had acquired it as war booty in the conquest of south east Asia. But the greed of President Marcos and his wife knew no bounds.

Seagrave poses the question: "What urge compelled Marcos to keep accumulating wealth beyond any possible use for it? After 20 billion dollars, what was the point?"
And he illustrates their greed with the story of what happened when the aircraft that carried the exiled couple from Manila touched down in Honolulu.

He writes: "The plane carried jewels and gold worth ten millions dollars. But that was petty cash. Elsewhere in bank vaults around the world, the Marcoses had so many billions in gold bullion and hard currency stashed away that the numbers are meaningless.

wearily off the plane, one of the little daughters was hugging a box of diapers. But they were not for her. Underneath the top diaper was something little Aimee was carrying through customs for her mother — a small fortune in pearls." The Marcos Dynasty by Sterling Seagrave (Macmillan).

imelda Marcos congratulates her husband on winning the presidential election in 1986

President Reagan and Marcos at the White House.

Most frequent causes of reversible memory loss are medications (for various illnesses), thyroid conditions and other metabolic disorders, alcohol abuse, infections and depression. ACROSS MY DESK: Too often the American health consumer learns about changes that affect personal health care after it's too late to do much about them. Think of the recent rate changes in Medicare, and the battle that must now be fought to reverse illconsidered legislation. Now I hear a distinct warning that residency training programmes, in particular those in family medicine, may be an endangered species because of the manner in which hospitals are being reimbursed for the costs of these programmes.

Dr Jack Colwill, president of the Society of Teachers of Family Medicine, warns that hospital support is crucial to the future of these residency programmes that produce the family physicians of tomorrow. If your hospital has a training programme that has served you in the past, this may be something you might wish to ask about before we lose another battle that affects health care.

Hearns ends nightmare

LAS VEGAS, June 14, (Reuter): Thomas Hearns awakened to a new world yesterday, one without the nightmare that has been haunting him

Hearns, desperately seeking to avenge a 1981, 14th-round loss to Sugar Ray Leonard, fought him to a 12-round draw on Monday night in a fight that may have equalled their classic confrontation eight years

Although Leonard, 33, held onto his World Boxing Council super Middleweight title by the narrowest of margins, it was the 30-year-old Hearns who felt vindicated.

"Last night was a do or die thing for me," Hearns said. "It's been tough for me the last eight years thinking about this man. I said to myself I'm tired of it. I was aiming to go in there and win this fight and erase what happened eight years ago.

Both fighters were in trouble at one point or another in the fight. Leonard was knocked down twice and Hearns appeared on the verge of being knocked out a couple of times. "It was a helluva performance by Tommy Hearns," Leonard said. "He fought a courageous and technical fight. He looked for redemption

Leonard, a 3-1 favourite to beat Hearns, said the videotapes would help him decide whether to continue fighting.
"Whether this was a bad performance for me or whether it was because of a good performance by Tommy Hearns," Leonard said. "He fought a courageous and technical fight. He looked for redemption and be got that. Leonard, a 3-1 favourite to beat Hearns, said the videotapes would help him decide whether to continue fighting.

"Whether this was a bad performance for me or whether it was because of a good performace by Tommy Hearns, I'll have to look at the tapes and evaluate it. If it was Tommy Hearns and I can't get any better, I'll make a decision (about retirement), "Leonard said.

"I never had the snap in my punches. I couldn't get a flow going. There were some devastating punches when I rocked Tommy, but I couldn't get him out of there. That's my forte, I can get him out of there. I just didn't have the magic."

Meanwhile in England, David Gower is to undergo an exploratory shoulder operation which threatens his fitness for the second Test at Lord's in nine day's time.

Gower said his right shoulder had been a source of constant aggravation for seven years and had recently become worse.

"It has deteriorated markedly over the last week to 10 days. The idea of going into hospital on Saturday is for the surgeons to have another look to see if the pain can be alleviated," he said. But Gower added he was hopeful of playing at Lord's.

I shouldn't be any worse off by the time the next Test is played and there is no plan to have any surgery done this weekend, even if it is needed. Yesterday's defeat at Headin-

Navratilova bans family, friends from Wimbledon

BIRMINGHAM. England, June 14. (Reuter): Martina Navratilova has banned her family and friends from coming to watch her at Wimbledon later this month because they are too much of a distraction.

The American, bidding for a record ninth women's singles title, told reporters yesterday: "I would like them to be there but is too much of a distraction to have them around. I need to concentrate on what I'm doing."

Navratilova, 32, displaced as world number one by West German Steffi Graf last year, is beginning her grass court preparation at the Edgbaston women's tournament here.

She had no problems in the second round, sweeping aside Japan's Akiko Kijimuta 6-0 6-1 in 46 minutes.

This year Navratilova will rely only on her companion Judy Nelson and coach Craig Kardon to provide the back-up she needs at Wimbledon. Navratilova is angry over references to her family and friends as her entourage. "I've never had one," she insisted. "The word is a misnomer. If you look it up in the dictionary it means servants and I've never put anyone I know on that level.

'It makes me sound like Mike Tyson, surrounded by bodyguards, but I've never had a bodyguard in my life," she Navratilova's 45 minute vic-tory highlighted second round play as Americans Zina Garrison, then knocked off Hu Na 6-3, 6-4, while Shriver, playing in only her fifth singles tournament of the year, struggled to a 4-6, 7-6 (7-1), 6-4 victory over Italy's Laura Golarsa. Defending champion and No. 5 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany also moved into the third round with a 3-6, 6-4, 6-2 triumph over Japan's Nana Miyagi.

"I've been so eager to play I couldn't stand it, said Navratilova, who took her first break in 17 years after suffering a semifinal loss to Argentine Gabriela Sabatini on April 16 at Amelia Island.

"The layoff did everything I hoped it would and more," said Navratilova. Navratilova said after that match with Sabatini, she was 'fried' and needed a break from the game. "I'm having fun once again, I know what's going on."

Unseeded Betsy Nagelsen also moved into the third round with a 7-6 (7-4), 6-4 upset victory over fourth-seeded Lori McNeil.

Lewis and DeLoach to skip US meet

HOUSTON, Texas, June 14, (Reuter): Olympic champions Carl Lewis and Joe DeLoach will protest at the policies of American athletics' governing body by skipping the US Track-and-Field Championships starting tomorrow.

The meeting will be used to pick the US team for September's World Cup in Barcelona but Lewis, the Olympic 100 metres and long jump champion, said recently: "If we athletes continue to support what they are doing, there'll be no track and field in DeLoach, the Olympic 200 metres champion who, like Lewis, lives and trains in Houston, is supporting his training partner's stand.

But officials of the Athletics Congress (TAC) discount Lewis' criticism of how the TAC promote the sport and their failure to use an independent agency to handle drug The latter, Lewis says, leaves TAC open to criticism of possible cover-ups of failed drug tests but TAC president Frank Greenberg describes this as ludicrous.

Executive director Ollan Cassell said it bothered TAC that athletes of Lewis' stature would be missing "but we can't (stop) the sport if that particular athlete doesn't want to
